People with intellectual and developmental disabilities need you now...

More than ever!

Today it is estimated that approximately 2.5% of the general population in the United States are diagnosed with an intellectual or developmental disability. Despite medical advances there will always be disabilities that occur at birth or later in life. Locally, The Arc serves over 300 individuals of all ages to thrive in their community with full inclusion and freedom of choice. Because a disability impacts the family as well as the individual, The Arc offers a wide array of services to help the family stay strong and unified.

We invite you to join us in fulfilling our vision of improving systems of supports and services for people with disabilities by connecting families, inspiring the community, and influencing public

Your membership will help...
